

Options for Post-High School Training

On the Job Training

- Some careers require completion of a formal, on the job training program. •••
- Your child may have to pass an aptitude test, then receive formal training provided by an employer.

Examples of Careers that Require on the Job Training

- Flight Attendants
- Bank Tellers
- Emergency Dispatchers
- Mail Carriers
- Reservation and Ticket Agents

Options for Post-High School Training

Apprenticeship Training

- An apprenticeship may last one to five years, depending on the career.
- Apprentices work with experienced workers and complete some classroom training. Apprentices earn wages while learning, but the wages are less than he or she will make once the apprenticeship is completed.
 - CISCO Resource

Options Continued...

Military Training

- The military trains people in 140 occupations.
- Many military occupations involve skills that can be useful in civilian jobs. ASVAB

Service members receive basic pay, allowances and benefits, include tuition assistance at colleges and universities.

-Military Tuition Assistance

Options Continued...

Certificate Training

- Some programs at community colleges, technical schools, and private career schools offer six-month to one-year training that provides a certificate of completion to show that your child is certified to do specialized work.

Examples of Certificate Programs

- Pharmacy Technicians
- Dental Assistants
- Paralegals
- Computer Repairers
- Floral Designers
- Medical Assistants
- Moraine Valley Certificate Programs